

Please join us for a power-packed one-day training!

The Girls Project

Train-the-Trainer

Saturday, April 21, 2007

9:00am - 5:00pm

THE GIRLS PROJECT

For the past nine years The Girls Project has conducted girl-centered empowerment program for girls on Manhattan's Lower East Side. This program was created to help prevent the well-documented crash in self-esteem, academic performance, and body image that girls experience as they enter adolescence.

The Girls Project has developed curriculum materials for elementary, middle, and high school girls,* with a focus on themes such as stereotypes, media, puberty/sexuality, relationships, women's history, activism, health, and body and soul (to name a few).

*Note: The materials for the high school level are specifically focused on immigrant teens.

ONE DAY TRAINING

Whether you are developing programming for girls or want to infuse your existing programs with fresh ideas, curricula, and energy, our annual training is an opportunity for educators, program directors, and staff who work with girls to learn about The Girls Project curriculum and teaching methodology.

This training will cover:

- Themes in the Girls Project curriculum;
- Collaborative/democratic education methods;
- The role of art and advocacy in education;
- The nuances of running a gender-based program.

WHERE: 535 East 12th Street, New York, NY, 10009

HOW MUCH: The cost is $250 per participant (depending on the size of your agency, this fee is negotiable.)

This price includes the training as well as a light breakfast and lunch. Each participant will receive a pdf file of curriculum.

CALL US NOW!! Space is limited. Call (212) 505-3184, or write: thegirlsproject@speakeasy.net to reserve your place in the training.

For more information about The Girls and Boys Projects, check out our website: www.gp-bp.org